You are standing in absolute shock as you see the massacre around you. You look around in panic for something that you can do and you suddenly hear G.R.O.O.T.'s robotic voice. Unfortunately, you are unable to understand what he is trying to say as he has been severely damaged. G.R.O.O.T. then points to the monitor on his torso with his partially broken arms and asks you to type out something. Maybe this will repair his language issues. You read mumbo-jumbo of letters and numbers. It looks like something you studied during your engineering days. It is a language that G.R.O.O.T. should understand very well.
